

Woman's Day

April 17, 2007

wdfood

GOOD COOKS

by Ellen Greene

boston uncommon

Sophisticated comfort food is a smash at Boston's Stephanie's on Newbury, and Stephanie Sokolove, the 300-seat bistro's owner and executive chef, has picked up some smart tips along the way. "After I've squeezed the juice out of lemons, I don't toss out the rinds. Instead, I freeze them in plastic bags. Whenever I need lemon zest, I pull out one of the frozen rinds and grate away. This also works nicely for oranges, grapefruits and limes."